Penny Banks Are Distributed for Primary Hospital

People of all ages in the Heber City area this week are urged to collect coins during February for the annual Penny Parade of the Primary Children's Hospital.

Utah dairymen have provided free enough penny banks shaped like half pint milk cartons to go into every home in Utah to aid the annual Penny Parade, said LaVerne W. Parmley, president of the hospital board of trustees. The penny banks are being distributed through Primary children.

"Every penny bank has a slot which will receive a 25 cent coin as well as dimes, nickels and pennies," Mrs. Parmley said. "Children as well as adults are encouraged to put their spare coins for the hospital in the carton banks during the Penny Parade in February. They are encouraged to retain the banks for placing coins throughout 1969 for the 1970 Penny Parade. We express appreciation to the American Dairy Association of Utah and participating dairies for their generous cooperation in our 1969 drive."

"Our Primary Children's Hospital last year treated children from 8 foreign countries and 20 states," said Kenneth C. Johnson, hospital administrator. "All in all 7,245 children were given care. The hospital, situated in Salt Lake City, serves children worldwide, regardless of race, religion, or national origin who can be treated medically."

He added that last year the hospital added chest and heart surgery to its services for children.

"I believe I speak for the youth of the entire state when I urge people to be more generous than ever in contributing to the Primary Children's Hospital Penny Parade this year," said pretty, blond Marcene Oliver, Smithfield, Cache county, Utah's Dairy Princess, who herself is a former Primary attendant.
